

Faculty and Student Licensing and Liability Insurance

May 2022

The PCC's liability insurance is a secondary insurance intended to cover faculty and students of the Center only in activities, learning, supervision and teaching undertaken explicitly on behalf of the Center.

- All PCC faculty and students must carry a valid, full or training, clinical license in the state in which their patients are located. All PCC faculty and students must practice within the constraints of their licenses.
- Faculty and students must also carry a separate, individual malpractice policy to cover their clinical and supervisory work.
- Supervisors of fully, independently licensed PCC students need not have a license in the same state as their student or the student's patient.
- Supervision undertaken to satisfy external licensing requirements is not covered by the PCC liability insurance.
- Faculty members who have completed their clinical training through the American Psychoanalytic Association's CORST program need not maintain a clinical license but must have individual liability insurance that is contingent on their clinical training.
- If a retired faculty member no longer has a clinical practice, they need not maintain their license or liability insurance. If these retired members meet all other requirements for faculty status, the Center's policy would respond to a covered claim for their teaching on behalf of the Center. Clinical supervision without a license & liability is not allowed within our program.
